Further information

Time Limits

Applications to the Information Commissioner must be lodged within the following times limits:

- within 60 days after being given written notice of the agency's decision (if you are the applicant for access or amendment)
- within 30 days after being given written notice of the agency's decision (if you are a third party)

Third Party

A third party is a person who objects to an agency's decision to give access to personal information or business information about that person to someone else.

Internal Review

Except where a decision is made by the principal officer of the agency, review by the Information Commissioner is not normally available until you have applied to the agency for internal review of the decision.

Decision not to deal with complaint

The Information Commissioner may decide not to deal with a complaint if it is not within the Information Commissioner's jurisdiction or if it is frivolous, vexatious, misconceived or lacking in substance. You will be given reasons for this decision if the Information Commissioner decides not to deal with the matter.

If there is not enough space on this form to complete the details required, attach separate pages.
